Since moving to Hong Kong for the first time as an army brat in the 1980's, Martin Knight has lived most of his adult life in the Far East. From his home on a boat in Hong Kong, he worked in Vietnam, Malaysia, the Philippines and Singapore, accumulating more airmiles than Richard Branson, probably. When not in Asia, he has lived and worked in South and West Africa, Jordan, Dubai, Egypt, Australia, Fiji and the North Sea. He has been held at gunpoint and finger point, he is the only westerner to ever beat a bar girl at connect four and he once accidentally stayed overnight in a Portuguese brothel. He even once helped a friend produce a sample for an emergency fertility test, but he doesn't like to talk about that. He also leapt off a survey boat into the North Sea, and he quite likes to talk about that, because it makes him sound brave. In Hong Kong, when not spending time away from his family travelling, Martin spent time away from his family running. Realising that Hong Kong is not just a vibrant metropolis with a really nice harbour, Martin took up running and racing the trails throughout the stunning country parks, for ever increasing distances, until eventually breaking himself. Throughout his travels, Martin has remained convinced that he would never return to the UK. Martin lives in Hertfordshire, England.
