In the beginning, God created man in His own image and blessed them. Consequently, God said unto them: “be fruitful and multiply, and replenish the earth and subdue it: and have dominion over the fish of the sea and over the fowl of the air and over every living thing that move upon the earth.” KJV (Genesis 1: 22)

Since that moment, human existence on the surface of the earth had been passing from one generation to another. After the debut of our book titled: “Manual for effective parenting,” we decided to beam our search light on the relationship between parents, grand-parents and grand-children.

This endeavor motivated us further into scripture and we were able to find an interesting perspective to anchor this book. The title of this book was driven by our discovery in Proverb 17:6 in the Standard Revised Version of the Holy Bible which reads: "Grand-children are the crown of the aged and the glory of sons is their fathers." In actual fact, parents choose to have their children, but they don't choose to have the number of grand-children they may eventually end up with. Being a grand-parent brings a feeling of joy. In fact, this experience leaves many grand-parents with the most beautiful memories of their lives. Some aspects of grand-parenting teach valuable lesson of life, respect, hard work, family values and unlimited love.

There is no doubt that grand-parents show love, which is obviously express in their words and actions. Undoubtedly, the dynamics of basic family unit comprising grand-parents, parents and children have changed greatly over the years.

Therefore, the roles of contemporary grand-parents are now totally different from what it used to be many years ago. It is also true especially, that grand-parents are now deeply involved in child-minding, at a time when they feel their child-minding days are behind them.

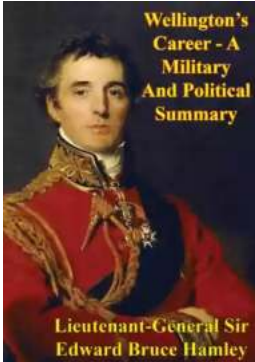

Most importantly, this is the time they are looking forward to freedom from responsibilities in their lives. To some grand-parents, the idea of having frequent responsibilities for grand-kids could be hell while for others it is a pleasurable welcome development.

However, the valid point we are making here is that, contemporary young parents prefer to let their children be under the custody of their parents especially when an occasion demands for it. Such moments are warranted by many reasons that are beyond the control of these parents.

Under these circumstances, no better person is better suitable to come to the rescue of these affected children and their parents except a grand-parent. At this juncture, we strongly advised parents to take proper care of their children while raising them.

We should always remember that we shall need attention and presence of these children when we are getting old. Our prayer is that as we train and raise these children, may almighty God make them responsible children that will take care of us in our old age amen.
