A taverna ... a monstrous platter of fish ... then a second. We didn't order these, don't really like fish. But they're a gift, the cook is watching and the giver is too. Life in a secluded Greek fishing village embraces two Canadian travellers, wraps them in its arms and overwhelms them with gifts. Friendship, laughter, cheeses, coffees galore. Those fish. Such encounters with the unexpected, the sometimes perplexing but always soul-affirming, are the kind of magic that rewards those who travel, not to see all the sights this world has to offer, but to slow down and savour. The kind of magic that, an ocean away, makes these Canadians feel they've come home. This book is the second in the Sifnos Chronicles series. "Sharon takes us along and immerses us in the lore of island life and its sights, sounds and smells. You'll delight in this ode to a lovely Greek isle." Maria A. KaramitsosWindyCity Greek
