Getting There

Before embarking on your road trip, it is essential to plan your journey accordingly. Natural Bridges National Monument is located in southeastern Utah and is accessible via Utah State Route 275. The nearest major airport is Salt Lake City International Airport, from where you can rent a car or arrange for ground transportation.

As you drive towards the monument, the scenic beauty of the surrounding landscape will captivate your senses. Desert vistas, red rock formations, and the vast expanse of the canyon country will serve as a breathtaking prelude to the wonders that await you at the monument.

The Bridges: Majestic Marvels of Nature

Natural Bridges National Monument is home to three majestic natural bridges: Sipapu, Kachina, and Owachomo. These geological wonders will leave you in awe as you witness the artistry of Mother Nature manifested in their delicate arches.

The first bridge you will encounter on the scenic drive is Sipapu Bridge. Named after the Hopi word for "place of emergence," this 220-foot bridge towers above the winding trails beneath. As you explore its unexpected openings and admire the sunlight filtering through the natural windows, you will understand why it is an iconic symbol of the monument.

Next up is Kachina Bridge, boasting a span of 204 feet. The trail leading to this epic marvel is a true testament to the ancient forces that shaped it. Prepare to be mesmerized by the sheer size and power of this incredible formation as you listen to the echoes of time reverberating through its caverns.

Lastly, you will reach Owachomo Bridge, the oldest and most fragile of the three bridges. This delicate beauty showcases the ongoing dance of erosion and formation. As you walk across the bridge, it is crucial to tread gently and respectfully, appreciating the delicate balance that created this masterpiece.

Exploring the Trails

Natural Bridges National Monument offers a variety of trails suitable for all skill levels, allowing you to immerse yourself in the unique splendor of each bridge. From short hikes to scenic overlooks and challenging treks, there is a trail for everyone seeking an unforgettable experience.

For a thrilling adventure, embark on the five-mile-long Bridge View Drive, a scenic loop road that lets you witness the grandeur of all three bridges. Revel in the panoramic views and take your time to capture the perfect photograph that encapsulates the essence of this remarkable place.

If you want to delve deeper into the mysteries of the monument, the 9.4-mile-long Horse Collar Ruin trail will transport you back in time. As you discover ancient ruins and rock art left by early inhabitants, you will gain a greater appreciation for the rich history that shaped this land.

Camping and Recreation

Immerse yourself in the tranquility of the natural surroundings by camping at one of the campground sites available within the monument. Wake up to breathtaking sunrises and fall asleep under a star-studded sky, truly connecting with the wonders of nature.

Additionally, Natural Bridges National Monument provides excellent opportunities for stargazing, bird watching, and even night photography. Capture the Milky Way in all its glory or witness the graceful flight of an eagle as you explore the diverse ecosystems thriving within the boundaries of the monument.

Preserving Nature for Future Generations

As custodians of this remarkable gift, it is our responsibility to protect and preserve the natural wonders of National Bridges National Monument. When visiting, ensure you leave no trace, following the principles of responsible travel. Be mindful of the fragile rock formations, respect wildlife habitats, and dispose of waste responsibly, leaving the monument as pristine as you found it.

By experiencing the profound beauty of Natural Bridges National Monument, you become part of an ongoing legacy, connecting with nature in a way that leaves a lasting impact on your soul.

In the heart of southeastern Utah lies a place unlike any other. Natural Bridges National Monument is a testament to the artistic craftsmanship of nature, where ancient forces have sculpted breathtaking arches that stand as a testament to the passage of time.

As you journey through this road guide, you will encounter the wonders of Sipapu, Kachina, and Owachomo bridges, each holding its own story and captivating charm. The trails will lead you on unforgettable adventures, while the camping sites allow you to immerse yourself in the enchanting beauty of the monument.

Natural Bridges National Monument has three bridges, which is the largest concentration of these naturally formed structures in the world. The monument, the first one in Utah, protects these bridges along with the canyons that contain them and valuable Ancestral Puebloan ruins and inscriptions. This book guides you along the paved road through the monument and gives directions for seeing the features, including loop hikes through the canyons. This book gives you an overview of what you'll find at each turnout along the road. This helps you preplan your visit. Most turnout entries include photos of views, facilities like tables and restrooms, and informational signs. Ideally you could stop at every turnout, but realistically, most of us have time constraints on our visit. You can read through this book before your trip and get a good idea of what you'll see at each stop.

Then you can choose the ones you really want to see the most. It is also useful to have a passenger read along as you drive. And knowing where the next restroom or picnic table is can be important at times. Some smaller arches that were found by the author, who is an expert on natural arches and bridges, are pictured.

This Road Guide presents the features of the park that can be seen from the road in order as you travel the park roads. Each listing includes a mileage and a GPS location. Trails and side roads are listed in the Road Guide, but because this is a Road Guide, emphasis is given to features the can be seen from roadside turnouts or short hikes. If you are interested in longer or backcountry hikes, obtain maps and directions from the Visitor Center.
